Youth, Peace and Security

In December 2015, the Security Council adopted Resolution 2250 on Youth, Peace and Security (YPS), in which the essential role of young people in preventing and resolving conflicts and in sustaining peace was recognized. This marked a significant shift in recognizing the role of youth as agents of change in peacebuilding and has been subsequently reaffirmed in Resolution 2419 (2018) and Resolution 2535 (2020). To support the YPS agenda, the UN works through five pillars as outlined in Resolution 2250 (2015): participation, protection, prevention, disengagement and reintegration, and partnerships. In 2018, an independent progress study on Youth, Peace and Security, “The Missing Peace” documented the positive role and impact of youth-led peacebuilding and provided the recommendations on the need to invest on YPS. In 2022, the second report by the Secretary-General on Youth, Peace and Security was released providing an analysis of the progress made since the resolution.

Youth and Humanitarian Action

In May 2016, the Compact for Young People in Humanitarian Action was launched at the World Humanitarian Summit. More than 50 humanitarian partners including governments, UN entities, international and local NGOs, and major youth organisations and networks, have become members of the initiative. Since then, the Compact has led efforts to put young people at the center of humanitarian action through five action areas: services, participation, capacity, resources, and data. In 2021 the Inter-Agency Standing Committee (IASC) endorsed Compact Guidelines for working with and for young people in humanitarian settings. Most recently, the Compact has developed operational guidance on COVID-19 response and on young people in humanitarian and protracted crises, ensuring humanitarian actors work with and for young people in these settings.

Youth and Climate Action

In the last decade, the youth climate movement has gained considerable momentum. In 2011, YOUNGO was confirmed as the formal voice of children and youth within the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) processes. In 2019, world leaders joined youth activists in a historic moment to sign an Intergovernmental Declaration on Children, Youth and Climate Action at the 25th Conference of the Parties (COP25) in Madrid. This was the first-of-its-kind commitment to accelerate inclusive, child and youth-centered climate policies and action at national and global levels. In 2019, the first Youth Climate Summit was held bringing together young climate champions together from more than 140 countries. Following the summit, in July 2020, the Secretary-General launched his Youth Advisory Group on Climate Change to further amplify youth voices and engage young people in climate action. In September 2021, the government of Italy in conjunction with the UNFCCC convened the Youth4climate conference to provide young people with the opportunity to put forward concrete proposals on key issues forming the agenda of the 26th session of the conference of Parties to the UNFCCC (COP26)
